The SAGE Handbook of Educational Action Research

Edited by Susan E. Noffke
and Bridget Somekh
CONTENTS

Contributors x
Acknowledgement xxvii

INTRODUCTION
Susan E. Noffke and Bridget Somekh 1

1. Revisiting the Professional, Personal, and Political Dimensions of Action Research
Susan E. Noffke 6

PART I ACTION RESEARCH METHODOLOGY:
DIVERSITY OF RATIONALES AND PRACTICES 25

Introduction to Part I 26

2 Building Educational Theory through Action Research
John Elliott 28

3 Teacher Research as Stance
Marilyn Cochran-Smith and Susan L. Lytle 39

4 Dialogic Inquiry as Collaborative Action Research
Gordon Wells 50

5 Action Research and the Personal Turn
Sandra Hollingsworth, Anthony Cody, Mary Dybdahl, Leslie Turner
Minarik, Jennifer Davis-Smallwood and Karen Manheim Teel 62

6 Educational Action Research: A Critical Approach
Wilfred Carr and Stephen Kemmis 74

7 Action Research for/as/mindful of Social Justice
Morwenna Griffiths 85
PART II  PROFESSIONAL: KNOWLEDGE PRODUCTION, STAFF DEVELOPMENT, AND THE STATUS OF EDUCATORS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Authors</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>A School District-Based Action Research Program in the United States</td>
<td>Cathy Caro-Bruce, Mary Klehr, Ken Zeichner and Ana Maria Sierra-Piedrahita</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9</td>
<td>Using Action Research to Support Students with Special Educational Needs</td>
<td>Christine O’Hanlon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10</td>
<td>Renegotiating Knowledge Relationships in Schools</td>
<td>Chris Bigum and Leonie Rowan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11</td>
<td>Lesson Study as Action Research</td>
<td>Catherine Lewis, Rebecca Perry, and Shelley Friedkin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12</td>
<td>Practitioner Action Research and Educational Leadership</td>
<td>Gary L. Anderson and Kathryn Herr</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>13</td>
<td>Educational Action Research as a Paradigm for Change</td>
<td>Shoshana Keiny and Lily Orland-Barak</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14</td>
<td>Practitioner Action Research: Building and Sustaining Success through Networked Learning Communities</td>
<td>Christopher Day and Andrew Townsend</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15</td>
<td>Action Research and Educational Change: Teachers as Innovators</td>
<td>Lesley Saunders and Bridget Somekh</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>16</td>
<td>A School System Takes on Exhibitions through Teacher Action Research</td>
<td>Marie Brennan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>17</td>
<td>Action Research, Professional Development and Systemic Reform</td>
<td>Herbert Altrichter and Peter Posch</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>18</td>
<td>Sustaining the Next Generation of Teacher-Researchers to Work for Social Justice</td>
<td>Barbara Comber and Barbara Kamler</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
19 Co-operative Change Management through Practitioner Inquiry

Susan Groundwater-Smith

PART III PERSONAL: SELF-AWARENESS, DEVELOPMENT AND IDENTITY

Introduction to Part III

20 Ethics and the ‘Personal’ in Action Research

Jane Zeni

21 Writing to Learn: A Process for the Curious

Mary Louise Holly

22 From Passionate Enquiry to Loving Detachment: One Researcher’s Methodological Journey

Marion Dadds

23 The Interconnections between Narrative Inquiry and Action Research

Debbie Pushor and D. Jean Clandinin

24 Capabilities, Flourishing and the Normative Purposes of Action Research

Melanie Walker

25 Demonstrating Quality in Educational Research for Social Accountability

Jean McNiff and Jack Whitehead

26 Action Research and Pedagogy as Science of the Child’s Upbringing

Petra Ponte and Jan Ax

27 Developing Relationships, Developing the Self: Buddhism and Action Research

Richard Winter

28 Teaching and Cultural Difference: Exploring the Potential for a Psychoanalytically Informed Action Research

Terrance Carson

29 Complexity Theory and Action Research

Dennis Sumara and Brent Davis
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Authors</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>30</td>
<td>Agency through Action Research: Constructing Active Identities</td>
<td>Bridget Somekh</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>from Theoretical Models and Metaphors</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>31</td>
<td>Existentialism and Action Research</td>
<td>Allan Feldman</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PART IV</td>
<td>POLITICAL: POPULAR KNOWLEDGE, DIFFERENCE, AND FRAMEWORKS FOR CHANGE</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>32</td>
<td>Elbows Out, Arms Linked: Claiming Spaces for Feminisms and</td>
<td>Patricia Maguire and Britt-Marie Berge</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Gender Equity in Educational Action Research</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>33</td>
<td>Students’ Participation in School Change: Action Research on the</td>
<td>Pat Thomson and Helen Gunter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ground</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>34</td>
<td>Community Action and Agency in the Education of Urban Youth</td>
<td>Peter C. Murrell Jr.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>35</td>
<td>Social-Political Theory in Working with Teachers for Social Justice</td>
<td>Marie Brennan and Susan E. Noffke</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Schooling</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>36</td>
<td>Rethinking Action Research: Commonsense and Relations of Freedom</td>
<td>Andrew Gitlin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>37</td>
<td>Participatory Action Research in Latin American Education: A Road</td>
<td>Eduardo Flores-Kastanis, Juny Montoya-Vargas, and Daniel H. Suárez</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Map to a Different Part of the World</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>38</td>
<td>Teacher Development and Political Transformation: Reflections from</td>
<td>Maureen Robinson and Crain Soudien</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>the South African Experience</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>39</td>
<td>The Impact of Action Research in the Spanish Schools in the</td>
<td>Ángel I. Pérez Gómez, Miguel Sola Fernández, Encarnación Soto Gómez</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Post-Franco Era</td>
<td>and José Francisco Murillo Mas</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
CONTENTS

40 Popular Education and Action Research 495
   Mary Brydon-Miller, Ismail Davids, Namrata Jaitli,
   M. Brinton Lykes, Jean Schensul, and Susan Williams

41 Partnership Action Research for Social Justice: Politics,
   Challenges and Possibilities 508
   Lew Zipin and Robert Hattam

   Conclusions 521
   Bridget Somekh and Susan E. Noffke

   Index 527
CONTRIBUTORS

Herbert Altrichter, is a Professor of Education at Johannes-Kepler-Universität Linz, Austria. Founding President of the Austrian Educational Research Association, training as organizational consultant. Research interests: school development, governance of schooling, evaluation, teacher education. Recent publications: Teachers Investigate Their Work (with Allan Feldman, Peter Posch, and Bridget Somekh; London, 2008, 2nd edition); Educational Governance (with Thomas Brueseemeister and Jochen Wissinger; Wiesbaden, 2007); Lehrerinnen und Lehrer erforschen ihren Unterricht (with Peter Posch; Bad Heilbrunn, 2007, 4th edition; translations in Greek and Chinese); Images of Educational Change (with John Elliott; Buckingham, 2000).

Gary L. Anderson is a Professor in the Steinhardt School of Culture, Education and Human Development at New York University. He is a former high school teacher and principal. He has co-authored two books and many articles on action research. The latest is The Action Research Dissertation (with Kathryn Herr). His new book, Advocacy Leadership, will be published by Routledge in early 2009.

Jan Ax is an Associate Professor in Educational Studies at the University of Amsterdam in the Netherlands. He has published and conducted research in educational policy and school organization, especially in the domain of secondary education and senior vocational education. His teaching subjects are instruction and curriculum, educational research methods, educational policy, and school organization.

Britt-Marie Berge is an Associate Professor and Senior Lecturer at the Department of Education and Umeå Centre of Gender Studies, Umeå University, Sweden. She has pedagogic experiences as a school teacher, university lecturer, and parent. Her main research interest is the construction of gender in educational settings and she has carried out research on pre-schools, compulsory schools, teacher training, and study circles. For the past 15 years she has also pursued action research on gender equity, which in English is published in articles and with Hildur Ve in the book Action Research for Gender Equity (Open University Press, 2000).

Chris Bigum is an educational consultant. His research interests include the implications of computing and bio-technologies for educational practice and policy. Specifically, these interests include read/write Web (or Web 2.0) environments, genomic literacy, new literacy studies, actor-network approaches to the study of educational innovation and change, digital epistemologies, schools as knowledge producers, and scenario planning in education.
Marie Brennan is a Professor of Education at the University of South Australia. She teaches curriculum and policy studies and has a long history of partnership research in the schooling sector in Australia, as well as work in early childhood, adult education, and higher education. Her main research interests are in participatory methodologies, political sociology of school reform, and in issues pertaining to democracy and educational injustice in globalizing times.

Mary Brydon-Miller directs the University of Cincinnati’s Action Research Center and is an Associate Professor of Educational Studies and Urban Educational Leadership in the College of Education, Criminal Justice, and Human Services. She is a participatory action researcher who engages in both community-based and educational action research. Her current scholarship focuses on ethics and action research. Other publications include work on participatory action research methods, feminist theory and action research, refugee resettlement, elder advocacy, disability rights, and academic writing in the social sciences.

Cathy Caro-Bruce is currently working as an educational consultant to school districts with the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction developing the Statewide System of Support (NCLB). For 30 years she has been a Staff and Organization Development Specialist for the Madison Metropolitan School District, and for 15 years has coordinated Classroom Action Research as part of the district professional development program. Cathy was a co-editor of Creating Equitable Classrooms through Action Research (Corwin Press, 2007). Cathy also works with school districts around the country helping them implement action research based on principles that drive high quality professional development.

Wilfred Carr is a Professor of the Philosophy of Education at the University of Sheffield. He is also an Honorary Professor in the Faculty of Education and Social Work at the University of Sydney, an Honorary Vice-President of the Philosophy of Education Society of Great Britain and a member of its National Executive Committee. His is interested in a range of philosophical questions concerning the nature of educational practice and their significance for the ways in which educational theory and research are currently conducted and understood. He is editor of The Routledge Falmer Reader in the Philosophy of Education (Routledge, 2005).

Terrance Carson is a Professor of curriculum studies and teacher education in the Department of Secondary Education at the University of Alberta in Edmonton, Canada. He is the former Chair of the Department and has taught post-graduate courses in action research since the mid-1980s. His publications include Action Research as a Living Practice, which he co-edited with Dennis Sumara. His recent research focuses on questions of diversity, teaching, and the internationalization of curriculum. He is currently a Vice-President of the International Association for the Advancement of Curriculum Studies.
D. Jean Clandinin is a Professor and Director of the Centre for Research for Teacher Education and Development at the University of Alberta. She is co-author with Michael Connelly of four books including Narrative Inquiry. Composing Diverse Identities: Narrative Inquiries into the Interwoven Lives of Children and Teachers (2006) drew on research with children and teachers in urban schools. She edited the 2007 Handbook of Narrative Inquiry: Mapping a Methodology. With AERA, she was a Vice-President of Division B; the 1993 winner of the Early Career Award; and she was awarded the 2002 Division B Lifetime Achievement Award.

Marilyn Cochran-Smith holds the John E. Cawthorne Millennium Chair and directs the Doctoral Program in Curriculum and Instruction at Boston College’s Lynch School of Education. Cochran-Smith was 2005 President of AERA. Her seventh book, Handbook of Research on Teacher Education: Enduring Questions in Changing Contexts (co-edited with S. Feiman Nemser, J. McIntyre, and K. Demers), was published in 2008. Cochran-Smith is co-editor of the Practitioner Inquiry Series, produced by Teachers College Press. The book, Inquiry as Stance: Practitioner Research in the Next Generation, co-authored by Marilyn Cochran-Smith and Susan L. Lytle, will be published by Teachers College Press in the spring of 2009.

Anthony Cody is a National Board certified teacher who has worked for the past 21 years in the Oakland schools. He taught middle school science for 18 years, and is now the secondary science coach for the District. He is active in the Teacher Leaders Network and recently helped found the Forum of Accomplished California Teachers. His two sons are now 15 and 17 years old, and he lives in the Oakland hills with his partner and their two dogs and two cats.

Barbara Comber is an acting Director of the Hawke Research Institute for Sustainable Societies at the University of South Australia. Her interests include literacy education, social justice, teachers’ work and identities, place and space, and practitioner inquiry. She has worked on a number of collaborative research projects with teachers in high poverty locations focusing on innovative and critical pedagogies which address contemporary social challenges. She has recently co-edited two books: Literacies in Place: Teaching Environmental Communication (Comber, Nixon & Reid, 2007) and Turn-around Pedagogies: Literacy Interventions for At-Risk Students (Comber & Kamler, 2005).

Marion Dadds is a Professor of Education at the University of Cumbria, UK. She has a distinguished background in the theory and practice of practitioner research, having conducted and published several of her own projects as well as supporting other professionals, especially teachers. Her particular contribution has been in the area of the emotional and spiritual dimensions of practitioner research.
Key publications include Passionate Enquiry and School Development and Doing Practitioner Research Differently (published jointly with Susan Hart).

Ismail Davids is the Executive Director at Foundation for Contemporary Research (FCR), a Cape Town-based action research NGO contributing toward poverty alleviation by promoting good local governance and municipal-community partnerships. His research interests include local governance and participatory democracy, inclusive citizenship, community development, poverty, and wealth. Ismail co-authored the South African university prescribed textbook Participatory Development in South Africa: A Development Management Perspective (2005, 2008), authored Voices from Below: Reflecting on Ten Years of Public Participation of Democratic Local Government in the Western Cape Province (2004), and has published numerous articles on issues of citizenship, democracy, and participatory development.

Brent Davis is a Professor and David Robitaille Chair in Mathematics, Science, and Technology Education at the University of British Columbia. His research is developed around the educational relevance of developments in the cognitive and complexity sciences, and he teaches courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels in curriculum studies, mathematics education, and educational change. Davis has published books and articles in the areas of mathematics learning and teaching, curriculum theory, teacher education, epistemology, and action research. His most recent book is Engaging Minds: Changing Teaching in Complex Times (2nd edition, 2008; co-authored with Dennis Sumara and Rebecca Luce-Kapler).

Jennifer Davis-Smallwood was a public school educator for 18 years. She taught in Waimea, Hawaii, as well as Vallejo and Berkeley, California. She is currently ranch manager and home schooling her third and sixth grade children.

Christopher Day is a Professor of Education and the Director of the Teacher and Leadership Research Centre (TLRC) at the University of Nottingham. He is an editor of Teachers and Teaching: Theory and Practice and co-editor of the Educational Action Research Journal. His books have been published in several languages and include Teachers Matter (2007), Open University Press; Successful Principal Leadership in Times of Change: An International Perspective (2007), Springer; A Passion for Teaching (2004), Falmer; International Handbook on the Continuing Professional Development of Teachers (2004), Open University Press; and Developing Teachers: The Challenges of Lifelong Learning (1999), Falmer Press.

Mary Dybdahl received her teaching credential and M.A. in Education from UC Berkeley’s Developmental Teaching Education program in 1988. She started teaching in the Vallejo City USD that year and joined the Berkeley Group almost immediately. After 10 years in the classroom and four years as a categorical program coordinator, Mary returned to UC Berkeley to get her administrative credential through the Principal Leadership Institute, a program that focuses on educational leadership in urban schools. For the past six years she has been an elementary school administrator in Vallejo.

John Elliott is an Emeritus Professor of Education within the Centre for Applied Research in Education at the University of East Anglia. He is well known internationally for his role in developing the theory and practice of action research in the contexts of curriculum and teacher development. He was an Advisory Professor to the Hong Kong Institute of Education (2001–2006) and a consultant to the Hong Kong Government on the strategic development of its curriculum reforms from 2001 to 2006. His recent publications include Reflecting Where the Action Is: The Selected Works of John Elliott in the Routledge World Library of Educationalists (2007).

Allan Feldman is a Professor of Science Education and Teacher Education at the University of Massachusetts Amherst. His research is focused on what it means to teach and to be a teacher. This is tied to his study of action research, self-study of teacher education practices, and existential conceptions of teaching. He has published in the Journal of Research on Science Teaching, Educational Action Research, and Science Education. Professor Feldman taught middle and high school science and math for 17 years before obtaining his doctorate at Stanford University.

Eduardo Flores-Kastanis is an Associate Professor and coordinator of the research group called ‘Schools as Knowledge Organizations’ at the Escuela de Graduados en Educación (Graduate School of Education) at the Tecnológico de Monterrey, in Mexico. He belongs to the Mexican Council of Educational Research (COMIE), and has been appointed as National Researcher of Mexico’s National Council of Science and Technology (CONACYT). His current research interests focus on the effects of organizational structures on the work of teachers, and how action research can contribute to improve administration in Mexican public schools. He lives in Chihuahua, Northern Mexico.

Shelley Friedkin is a Research Associate at Mills College in Oakland, California. Her current research interest focuses on teachers’ use of data to improve classroom instruction. The co-authors are currently studying the impact of lesson study on teachers’ content knowledge. Additional information and video of US and Japanese teachers engaging in lesson study are available at www.lessonresearch.net.

Andrew Gitlin holds a Chair in the Department of Social Foundations at the University of Georgia. He has focused his research efforts on trying to